Proving Ground Electric Demand Equal to Hope

Graves Discloses City May Add $45,000 to Municipal Plant

If negotiations for electric power on the Southwestern Proving Ground, now under way between the government, private power companies and the City of Hope, should result in the municipal water & light plant getting the contract it would mean virtual doubling of electric production at the city-owned plant, Mayor Albert Graves told Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow.

Mayor Graves, emphasizing that much of what he said was speculative, and subject to the successful completion of contracts now being considered, gave the civic club an extensive report on how the 15-million-dollar National Defense plant will affect civilian services in Hope.

"The Proving Ground apparently will require about as much electricity as our municipal plant now produces for Hope alone," the mayor said. "That is, our present demand ranges from 500 KWH to 1,100 KWH—and the Proving Ground would require an equal amount."

"$45,000 More Equipment
"This means some changes in our present municipal plant—the purchase of about $45,000 worth of additional equipment. It looks as though the government will pay us to buy and install this equipment, and then pay us a small rate for current."

"If we get this contract we shall have to build two electric lines to the Proving Ground, one for service and the other for 'stand-by' or emergency service."

"The contract for water would require 100,000 gallons a day for the Proving Ground during the construction period — which would be reduced to standby service only when the Proving Ground operates on a permanent basis, as they plan to drill two wells of their own."

"As you have read, the Proving Ground is expected to employ about 800 persons on a permanent basis, and the big plant is scheduled for completion by February 1. However, the electric contract for the construction period would call for a period of 10 months—which would project the completion date much beyond February 1."

"Several thousand people will be required during the construction period, the Callahan Construction company having called up 200 carpenters Monday, with a second call for 500 more."

"Local people are being given preference in filling jobs."

"Many of these construction workers will live in barracks on the Proving Ground reservation, and provision also has been made for a trailer camp on the government property. But many of these people will be in Hope some of the time, and so we are confronted with new and special problems as a community."

Barbershops Hike Prices

Increase of Five Cents on Haircuts, Shaves

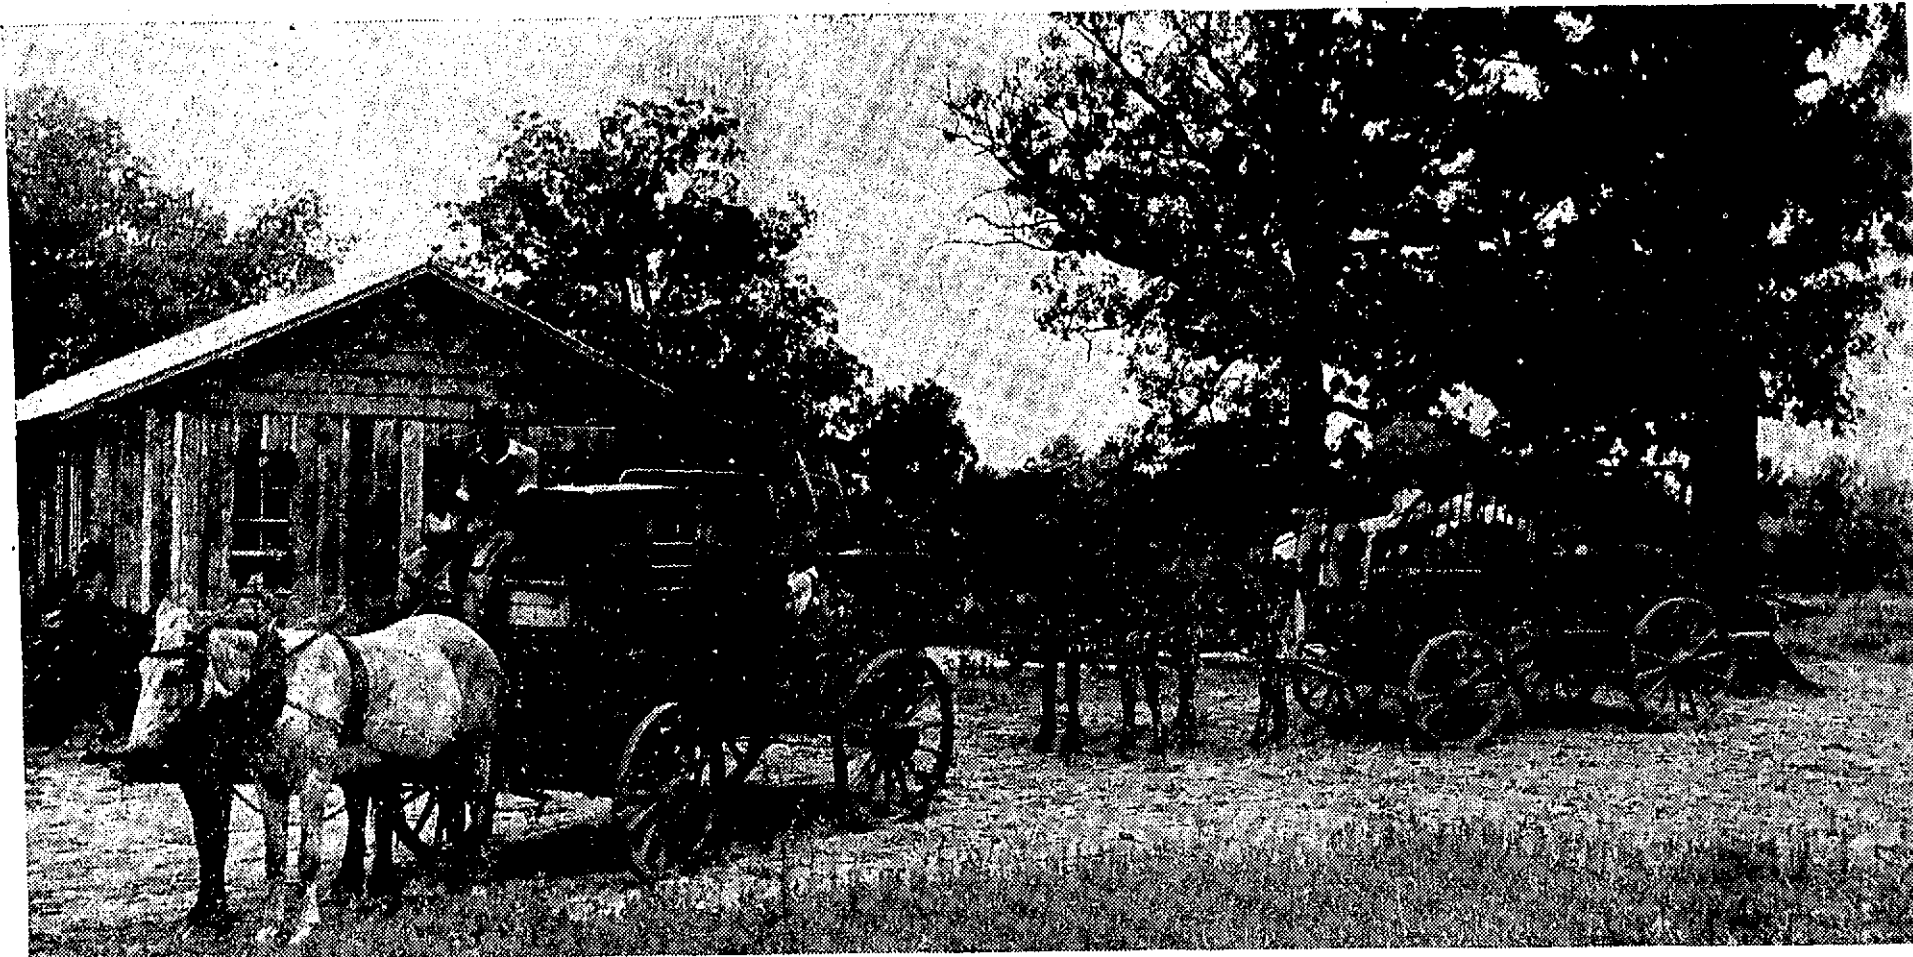

Beginning Friday morning all Hope barbershops announced increases of five cents on haircuts and shaves, making the new prices for a shave 25c and a haircut 40c.

The increase is due, local barbers said, to higher living costs and to rigid inspections.

Sunday Said to Be Day for Occupation

British Prepare in Malaya; to Announce U. S. Policy Saturday

SAIGON —(AP)— Concessions gained by Japan in French Indo China were reported authoritatively Friday to include the right to station warships in Camranh Bay and at Saigon, several air bases in southern Indo China and permission to post troops at several other points.

Major General Raishiro Sumita, chief of the Japanese military mission, was expected in Saigon Saturday to direct occupation on the basis granted by the French.

Several thousand Japanese troops will be stationed at Saigon and along the southeast Indo China coast and within Cambodia, it was said.

The Japanese, it was indicated, also have gained control of several Indo China airports where it was understood they will establish garrisons.

Both Saigon, airports, and other troops stations mentioned are the Japanese outposts closest to Singapore, British Malaya and the Netherland East Indies.

Specific U. S. Action

HYDE PARK —(P)— President Roosevelt disclosed Friday that the United States would retaliate with specific action Saturday against Japanese occupation of naval and air bases in French Indo China.

He told a press conference that there would be something out of Washington Saturday but would not say what. However, members of the presidential party in Hyde Park of the weekend, said the U. S. would most likely freeze Japanese credits and assets.

20 Army Trucks to Help Move

Farmers May Register for Trucks at Three Places

Twenty large Army trucks and trailers will arrive in Hope at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon under orders to help Hempstead county farmers move out of their homes in the Southwestern Proving Ground to new locations, Rep. Talbot Feild, member of the Arkansas House of Representatives Defense Committee, announced here Friday.

The trucks are under command of Lieut. Melvin Amen, and will remain here through July 31. Rep. Feild announced that farmers wishing to use the trucks in removing their families and belongings should register at one of the following places:

1. Lloyd's Store, five miles north of Hope on the Hope-Blevins highway.

2. Urrey's Store, seven miles north of Hope on the same road.

3. County Relocation Committee office, fourth floor of the courthouse, telephone 643.

The Army trucks were obtained through the intervention of Gov. Homer M. Adkins with the Army command, Mr. Feild reported. The representative said the governor telephoned Maj. Gen. Ralph Truman, Little Rock, and the latter, after taking the matter up with Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, Memphis, commander of the Second Army, was instructed to place the trucks at the disposal of the Hempstead County Relocation Committee, headed by County Agent Oliver L. Adams.

Governor Adkins also instructed the local district office of the State Highway Department to see that the Army trucks are supplied with gasoline and oil during their stay here.

The trucks will move local farmers anywhere in Hempstead county, but not outside the county, Rep. Feild said.

Workers Battle in Canal Zone

Police Called to Stop Fighting in Labor Camp

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone —(P)— Police reserves were called out Friday to quell a 90-minute battle between Latin American workers and other workmen imported from the British West Indies for special work in the Gatun area of the Canal Zone.

An entire labor camp of 3,000 men was involved.

The trouble began late Thursday when some 200 men fought until police restored order. The fighting broke out again Friday.

Aluminum Drive Show Saturday

Special Picture at Saenger Set for 9:30 a. m.

Every Hempstead County farm family has an opportunity to contribute to the National Defense Program by donating old aluminum utensils and unused aluminum parts of all sorts for the manufacture of defense equipment. Mr. Oliver L. Adams and Miss Mary Claude Fletcher, county Extension Agents, announced Friday.

The Office of Civilian Defense, the agents said, has announced a nationwide drive to collect old and unused aluminum since there is a temporary shortage of this essential metal.

The Extension Service, through its agricultural committees, 4-H clubs and home demonstration clubs, has been given the responsibility for collecting aluminum in rural areas, the

Thrills, Romance on Way in the Air Epic, 'I Wanted Wings'

New Aviation Show to Open Here Sunday

Milland, Holden, Morris, Donlevy Star in Saenger's Latest Picture

Combining a story of adventure and romance with the exciting and fascinating chronicle of how America is training its young men for defense in the air, "I Wanted Wings," Paramount's new aviation spectacle, will come roaring into town Sunday, when it begins its local run at the Saenger Theater. Hardly ever has a motion picture caused so much excited talk among moviegoers, and there is plenty of good reason for it.

To begin with, film fans seem to sense, with that indefinable instinct that many of them seem to possess, that Paramount has sent aloft an aviation picture perhaps of unsurpassed magnitude. The fact that the Army Air Corps gave its fullest cooperation to the film's producers indicates a picture of the first rank. Even the indelible motion picture, "Wings," one of the greatest sky films of all time, did not have such auspicious help. All this, of course, leads us to take for granted that there will be breathlessly thrilling sky sequences—and that they will all be authentic and accurate, which is always a tremendous benefit in a picture of this sort.

For instance, "I Wanted Wings" presents the details of what might happen if a city such as Los Angeles were to be raided from the air and blacked out in defense. Information hurls back to this, back from the Coast heralds this scene as one of the most gripping ever filmed. And well it might be, too.

While the picture stars such brilliant players as Ray Milland, William Holden, Wayne Morris and Brian Donlevy, there is one player in "I Wanted Wings" to whom considerable

A comparative newcomer to the screen, Miss Lake, who has appeared in only three minor roles in the past, dashes towards stardom with all the speed and surprise of a pursuit plane. She's a thoroughly streamlined beauty, honey-blond, with exciting looks, trim figure, and, no doubt, plenty of genuine acting ability.

Constance Moore, who has been seen more frequently on the screen than Miss Lake, also is featured in the cast, playing her most important part so far. As this department recalls her, she is lovely to look at, knows how to comport herself before the camera lens.

Auction Articles May Be Left With Rural Stores

Household articles and farm implements which farmers intend to offer at the second monthly Farmers Free Auction and Sales Day, which will be held in Hope Monday, August 4, may be left at the nearest rural store, where they will be collected and hauled to the Auction free of charge, the Trade Promotion Committee of Hope Junior Chamber of Commerce announced Wednesday.

Silas Sanford, well known auctioneer, will tour the territory immediately, interviewing farm families, lining up articles to be offered at this second auction, and making other necessary arrangements. He has been retained as field agent by the Junior Chamber of Commerce committee, sponsors of the event which is held in Hope the first Monday of every month.

ber of extra policemen and may have to hire more. Also, we are trying to have public toilets completed in the city by the middle of August.

"The pressure of such public works has compelled the city to abandon for the time being its plans to construct an exhibit hall at Fair park.

"On the other hand, we are tackling the housing problem with plans to have Hope declared a Defense Area. There is a meeting of the State Defense Council at Hope city hall at 2 o'clock this Friday afternoon, at which Mr. Wooten and Mr. Henry will be present.

"The most important fact about a Defense Area seems to be the advantage it would give us in obtaining housing materials as the national priority drive continues on all items entering into defense production. Also, it is likely a Defense Area designation would permit speculative building to provide relief for the obvious housing shortage here."

The mayor was introduced on a program arranged by Rotary President George W. Robison.

Guests Friday were: Tom Compton, Rotarian and president of the Prescott Chamber of Commerce, who reported Prescott has 3,900 soldiers in town with 5,000 more coming as the headquarters town for the August Army maneuvers fills up; Dr. Ralph Weddington of Batesville, State Health Department official who is handling agents said, and plans are underway for launching the campaign.

When the drive is organized, members of home demonstration clubs, business committees, 4-H clubs, agricultural committees and other agencies and farm organizations will call upon all farm families in the county for the purpose of soliciting their support and collecting aluminum donations.

Items desired include pots and pans, radio parts, toys, shakers, screening, old washing-machine parts, picture frames, book ends, ice-trays, measuring cups, camera equipment, kettles and double boilers, bottle and jar caps, refrigerator plates, and electric appliances of all sorts. Anything that is made of aluminum will do, the Extension agents said.

Farm families are asked to begin now to look around for items which they will be able to spare since collecting will begin as soon as organizational work is completed.

Aluminum was one of the first items to be placed on the priority list by the Office of Production Management. The drive for aluminum scrap does not mean that there is an acute shortage of this metal. Aluminum, however, requires a long time to make, and the quantity required for defense production is tremendous. Ten thousand pounds of aluminum go into a fighter plane. It is estimated that the present scrap collection will result in obtaining 20 million pounds of aluminum.

The aluminum collected will go to smelting plants where it will be made into secondary aluminum that will release 20 million pounds of first-class aluminum from other vital uses for airplane manufacture.

No one will make a profit on the aluminum donated, and all the aluminum will be used directly for national defense, the Extension agents said.

Burial will be in the Shover Springs cemetery. Herndon-Cornelius will be in charge of the arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers will be A. A. Albritton, M. B. Gentry, Arthur Fuller, George Crews, Allen Walker, Lelma Ruggles, R. F. Fuller, Fred Hunt, and D. B. Collier.

Howard Collier, Early McWilliams, Hugh Lanster, Otis Fuller, W. B. Garrett, Sam England, and Hale Bowden will be active pallbearers.

Memphis Is to Get New Bridge

6-Million-Dollar Structure to Span Mississippi

MEMPHIS, Tenn. —(AP)— With the federal government paying $4,500,000 and Arkansas and Tennessee meeting the rest of the cost, a $6,000,000 four-lane highway bridge will be built across the Mississippi here, United States Senator K. D. McKellar (Dem., Tenn.) announced Thursday in Washington.

McKellar has been assured by Thomas McDonald, federal public roads administrator, that the project will be included in the defense program along with improvements to strategic highways, the Press-Scimitar said.

Vehicle traffic crosses the Mississippi here now on the Harahan railroad bridge, about 25 years old, which has a narrow wagonway on either side.

The federal government will determine the location of the new span. Engineers seeking a site have been conducting soundings for some time.

Senate Committee Agrees on Terms of Resolution

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Members of the Senate Military committee were reported Friday to have agreed informally on general terms of a resolution by which congress will declare a limited emergency in which selectees, national guards and reservists may be kept in service beyond the present one year limitation.

Senator Lee (D-Okla.) told reporters when he came out of the closed session that a count of noses with in the committee disclosed no opposition.

Ecuador Calls Men to Arms

Border Conflict With Peru Breaks Out Again

QUITO, Ecuador —(AP)— The government, engaged in a border conflict with Peru, Friday summoned for military service all men born in the years from 1916 to 1919. They are to report within five days.

News dispatches reported heavy bombings of Chacras and Santa Rosa Thursday but reported no casualties.

Military communiques Thursday night said Ecuadorian forces repulsed attacks along the border despite the superiority of the Peru forces.

sets in the U. S.

By the Associated Press

Japan's dream of conquest in the Pacific moved toward grim reality Friday with the reported mobilization of a million men while at sea ships were blanked out in silence and turned from United States shores.

In London Secretary Anthony Eden told Parliament that "certain defense measures in Malaya were already enforced to counter potential threats of the Japanese occupation of French Indo China."

The House of Commons cheered when Eden said the British government had been in close touch with the United States government concerning measures to be taken.

Leaves Protection Offer

Dispatches from Singapore said that France's colony ignored a recent offer of protection by Britain, the United States, China and the Dutch East Indies "against further encroachment from the outside."

In Rome the authoritative Fascist editor Virginia Gayda said the Indo China thrust was the "first episode in the Japanese march to the south and was undertaken on full agreement with the other Axis powers."

Dispatches from Saigon, French Indo China, said concessions gained by Japanese in the strategic Camranh bay on the southeast Indo Chinese coast, only 800 miles from Singapore.

The reports also said that the Japanese may station warships at the river port of Saigon and obtained several air and naval bases in southern Indo China.

Foreign intelligence in Shanghai said the Japanese mobilization was the greatest since July 1937, when the war with China began, and had been in progress since July 17 and was continuing.

The troops destinations were kept secret but advance contingents were expected to occupy the newly won air and naval bases in southern French Indo China on Sunday and, as one Hunan newspaper put it "Indo China is on the way to Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies."

In Berlin authorized sources declared that Japan had informed Germany that she was determined to oppose, by every means, any British attempt on French Indo China or any threat to Japan's "new order" in the Far East.

Nazis Renew Offensive

No Decisive Gains Reported on Russian Warfront

By the Associated Press

London reports said Friday that Adolf Hitler's armies had renewed the offensive along the entire Russian warfront but said there were not decisive results gained by either side at any place.

Hitler's commanders said the 34-day struggle was "proceeding according to plans" but acknowledged stiff Red army resistance.

Red army troops defending the road to Moscow said they had annihilated an entire German infantry division, about 15,000 men, near Smolensk, and the Soviet capital's air defense were credited with beating off the fourth night attack by German planes.

Official Soviet sources said only one Nazi plane penetrated the defenses and was shot down.

Martinez Revival Still in Progress

The meeting now in progress on the courthouse lawn is increasing in numbers and in interest. Several have been converted.

The subject for Friday night will be, "The Greatest Home Run." Everybody is cordially invited.

Paul Reminds Christians That Christ, Not Church Leaders, Is Their Master

Text: Galatians 1:1, 12; 1 Thessalonians 2:13; 1 Timothy 3:14-17; 1 Peter 3:14-16; Jude 3

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of Advance

When a great man dies, almost invariably among the biographies is a volume that consists mainly of his letters. These are read eagerly by those who loved or admired him because it is realized that in these letters he revealed his life and thoughts more clearly and intimately than anything else could have revealed it.

We have no formal biographies of the great apostles and leaders in the first generation of the Christian Church. It is interesting that on the whole we know more about Paul than we do about any of the original 12 apostles. We are fortunate in the letters which tell us more about Paul than the formal facts of his life and career as they are recorded in the Book of the Acts, and which tell us much concerning Peter, James and others who wrote the Epistles.

Here in our lesson we have some samples of these letters. Three of the selections are from the letters of Paul to the Galatians, one to the Thessalonians, and one, a personal letter addressed to his beloved son in the faith, Timothy. We have a selection, also, from a letter written by Peter to the disciples in general, and a chapter which constitutes a single book, written by Jude, who is believed to have been a younger brother of Jesus.

In the passages by Paul, we have an indication of the intimate relationship he maintained with the churches he established, and with the disciples. Apparently there were two attitudes on the part of these—some whose loyalty to Paul was so intense that there was a danger of their religion making them disciples of Paul rather than disciples of Christ; and others who were inclined to be

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

Movie Thoughts on Kissing and Dying

HOLLYWOOD — All over the lot, John Huston, tall, long-faced son of the famous Walter, has been a movie star for the past few years, and now has a contract to direct his own scripts. His first directing job, after writing the screen play, is "The Maltese Falcon." The beginning of the picture brought dozens of good-luck messages and gag gifts from all over Hollywood.

The best of those tokens, though, has just arrived. There's a scene in which Humphrey Bogart and Lee Patrick are sitting in the detective's office trying to figure some way of getting hold of the priceless statue of the cat. Their talk is interrupted by a man clutching a package stumbling in. He collapses on the couch and dies. A sea captain just arrived from Hong Kong, and on his way to the office to deliver the falcon, he has been shot.

Dies for Son

The tall man who lurched into the room was Walter Huston, who wanted to appear somewhere in his son's first picture. It's the smallest role the celebrated actor has had since he first appeared on a stage in Toronto in 1902.

After expiring realistically on the couch, he could have been replaced by a double during the rest of the scenes. Instead, he returned to Warner's next morning, got into costume and makeup, and played corpse. For the check, a $50 check was made out—not to Walter Huston, but to a bit actor who hasn't had much work lately.

Speaking of dying, Robert Preston again is breathing his last for Cecil DeMille. He was shot and killed by Brian Donlevy in "Union Pacific," expository sermons on chapters of Scripture suggested by members of the congregation. The subject this Sunday night is "The 121st Psalm." The pastor would be glad to use your favorite chapter in one of the services.

Turn Crowd Loose in Kitchen During the Summer

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

AP Feature Service Writer

To save meal-making minutes—often precious in the summertime—why not turn the crowd loose in the kitchen or on the terrace before a quick-service sandwich bar?

Family or guests then make their own sandwiches of assorted breads, meats, chicken, tongue, mixed fillings and other sandwich trimmings. With a hot beverage, relishes, fruit or frozen dessert and cookies, you have a quick meal worth trying.

The bar itself can be a table with smart summer trappings, a gayly colored cart on wheels or merely the kitchen table. Here are some hints as to what it can offer:

Savory Corn Patties

There will be repeat orders for savory corn patties, a snappy new member of the hamburger family. Mix a pound uncooked hamburger, 1 cup drained cooked corn, 2 tablespoons each of chopped parsley, celery, onions and green peppers. Season with 1-3 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Shape into cakes half an inch thick. Cook and tuck into plain or toasted buns.

Liver sausage, sliced paperthin and spread with sliced cucumbers and catsup, is another sandwich combination.

Seasoned Butters

Seasoned butters make for easy spreading. Add a little chopped parsley, chives and prepared mustard to butter and place in a small dish. Label it with small flag stuck on wood pick: "onion in it." Chili sauce, horseradish and mayonnaise makes another butter flavor combination.

Fill a wooden chopping bowl with cracked ice and heap over it some radishes, small green onions, thin carrots strings, celery, sweet pickles and olives. A bowl of pickled beets brightens the table. Cauliflower, dunked in French dressing and thoroughly chilled, is another relish suggestion.

Youngsters like novelties like this peanut relish: Mix one cup chopped roasted peanuts, 1/2 cup chopped celery, 1-3 cup grated raw carrots, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 3 tablespoons salad dressing and 1/4 teaspoon chopped pickles.

Men like ham and cheese sandwich fillers. Cheese slices can be covered with mayonnaise, catsup and a bit of mustard. Let there be plenty of lettuce.

Women usually lean to ham, tuna or chicken. These go best on buttered white bread.

Give your old ALUMINUM for NATIONAL DEFENSE

7700 PANS = ONE PURSUIT PLANE!

It takes 7,700 aluminum pans to furnish material for one U. S. plane, according to OPM data, and it will take the combined donations of all of us to produce enough aluminum to build all the planes we need. Give yours today!

OF COURSE you'll miss your favorite aluminum pan, but you still can do a good job of meal preparation with enamel or glass utensils—and you have the satisfaction of knowing you are aiding in national defense. And because of an abundance of low-cost natural gas with its ease of control and numberless shades of temperature, you will still save time, food and fuel.

BECAUSE today's modern gas ranges were designed to eliminate kitchen fatigue and cooking drudgery, in the cooking of all types of food with certainty of success—regardless of kind of utensil used—you need have no worry about serving your family tasty, tempting, healthful meals . . . so don't hesitate, give your aluminum today.

Arsenals Pass War's Peak

With Modern Equipment Production Increases

By NEA Service
ROCK ISLAND, Ill.—A government arsenal is a manufacturing laboratory with many different jobs, and the one here throbs to the whole cacophonous symphony of preparation for war.

In shops where the recoil mechanisms of cannon are made, there's the unearthly howl of high-speed stones tearing into steel. In the big tank plant, riveting machines clatter like war drums to the bass thumpings of huge stamp mills in other buildings. Motors, saws and lathes play a whining obligato, and in a long basement room ordnance experts clash deadly cymbals as test bullets are shot at test sheets of armor plate.

Blue-uniformed guards patrol the 899-acre island. Workmen and foremen—of some 270 different classifications—are Civil Service employees.

Personnel reached 13,263 during the World War, slumped to 700 in 1933, now is approaching the previous peak. But with modern equipment, production is enormously increased. During 1940, Rock Island's expenditures for material and machines were $288,342,821—almost three times the amount spent during the World War rush.

They make about 30 different articles, from massive, 10-wheel carriages for 155 mm. howitzers to the little stamped links which, hinged by 30 or 50 caliber ammunition, form modern machine gun belts.

Recoil Devices Are Most Important

Among a lot of products such as tanks, gun carriages, machine guns and tripods, fire control equipment and optical instruments, most important are the recoil devices. This assembly of cylinders, part of the cradle of every cannon, absorbs the fierce kick of explosion and returns the gun to its original position. The U. S. design is the finest in the world, contributing to the life of the guns and the accuracy of fire.

Quite a few medium tanks are being made here, and the arsenal will be the only source of them until Chrysler's huge factory gets into production. This is the birth-place of the M-3, the land dread-naught that carries a 75 mm. cannon and was so spectacularly demonstrated at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds a few months ago.

Combat cars and tractors are the subjects of other experimental work being done here. And armor plate is being tested in the continuous rivalry between ordnance experts. As an official explains it: "One arsenal develops plate that no bullet can pierce, and another arsenal develops a bullet that can go through anything. Neither side stays in the lead very long, and both products are getting better all the time."

Few U. S. Listening Posts Left in Europe

WASHINGTON—When the Navy's big armed transport, West Point, steamed back into New York harbor with some 350 American consular agents and their families, all of whom were "swapped" with Italy and Germany for their 460 consular agents and families stationed in the United States, it will mark the beginning of a new period of diplomatic listening-in on the European war. Vice-versa, it will mark the beginning of a new period of espionage or observation of our affairs by Germans and Italians.

Embassies, the high ranking ambassadors and ministers and their staffs, are not affected by the swap, but in the United States will be without direct consular representation in Germany; Italy, Norway, Denmark, Albania, Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg, Yugoslavia, Greece, Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania and the German-occupied portion of France.

In the German occupied part of Europe, where all the 350 returning Americans come from, the United States government will be left with only six strategic listening posts—Berlin, Rome, Budapest, Sofia, Bucharest and Helsinki. In all these capitals the United States has embassies or legations with diplomatic officers rather than just consular officers, and under the terms of the mutual expulsions of each others' lesser fry officials, the embassy staffs are permitted to function at the same old marble stands.

No Official Mad-on

The United States still isn't at war with anyone, and Germany and Italy aren't officially mad at us. It's a good bit like divorce, where the parties go on dating each other though they're not married any more, and they sin lphaven't any permanent use for each other.

Custody of the children in this queer setup is left principally in the hands of the ranking half dozen diplomats. William Phillips of Massachusetts is ambassador in Rome with a staff of 20. We have no ambassador in Berlin, the embassy there being in charge of Leland M. Morris of Pennsylvania, who ranks as a counselor and was actually consul general. His staff numbers 30. At both Rome and Berlin—at all embassies, in fact—are military and naval attaches, service officers who can kibitz on the war from the capital fronts.

Four diplomats with the rank of envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary occupy the other listening posts in the German area: G. H. Earle of Pennsylvania, at Sofia, Bulgaria; H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld of Washington, D. C., at Helsinki, Finland; Herbert C. Pell of Rhode Island at Budapest, Hungary; and Franklin M. Gunther of Florida at Bucharest, Rumania.

Gone are the other United States diplomatic and consular staffs in the Balkans, the low countries and the Balkan republics, although Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., of Pennsylvania, stationed in London, is in contact with the refugee governments of Belgium, Poland, Norway and the Netherlands.

Similarly, the consulate staff in Paris, which has been under Robert D. Murphy of Wisconsin, is home-bound on the West Point, leaving the United States without observers in occupied France. At Vichy is Admiral William D. Leahy as ambassador, with a staff of 15. This is perhaps the toughest assignment in the whole diplomatic corps for it involves the tough job of doing everything possible to keep France from going for all-out co-operation with the axis.

Five That Count

Theoretically, business as usual for the diplomatic and consular staffs goes on in the five neutral countries of Europe: Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal and Eve, and all of them are important, too for these are the countries that must be kept neutral, or at least not too pro-axis.

David Gray of Florida is at Baile Atha Cliath—Dublin to you. Bert Fish of Florida is at Lisbon, and L. cause this is the principal European port kept open for shipping and the clipper, it is the big relay point for mail and passenger services, hence essential to watch. Leland Harrison of Illinois is at Bern, Switzerland; Alexander W. Weddell of Virginia is at Madrid, and Frederick A. Sterling of Texas at Stockholm.

That leaves the two big allied capitals, London and Moscow. Ambassador John K. Winnant of New Hampshire at the former, and Laurence A. Steinhardt of New York at the latter.

Britons Stand in Food Line

Resenting Ration Abuse, 'Battle of Larder' Waged

By ROSSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON—The Battle of the Labor housewife's horizon these days. It is assuming as much importance to her as the Battle of the Atlantic and the Battle of the Clothes-Coupons—not to mention the ever-threatening invasion.

The list of rationed foodstuffs has grown considerably. It now includes jam, preserves, butter, bacon, margarine, tea, sugar and cheese. White honey, breakfast cereals, biscuits, olive oil and dried fruits are now controlled. The butter ration has just been reduced to two ounces a week, but the cheese ration has been correspondingly increased. An extra two pence has been added to the meat ration, making it a little over a dollar's worth of meat per week for a family of four.

Meanwhile, several women's organizations have sent protests to Lord Woolton, Food Minister. They want to know why controlled foods can be obtained in restaurants and hotels and not in shops. As a matter of fact, they know why. The answer is that hotels and restaurants buy in large quantities and are willing to pay more than the controlled price—and are therefore served first. They also know that suppliers are eager to reduce delivery expenses, but it seems to them that traders are too readily inclined to be unfair and completely overlook the housewife's needs.

For the first time since the war started, queues can now be seen outside food shops all over the country.

For the next few months, however, the outlook is more promising. England is beginning to reap the fruits of harvests on all sides to "Dig for Victory," and back yard gardens, allotments and even window-sill boxes are beginning to show good crops of potatoes, tomatoes and other vegetables.

"Food Code" Gives Shopping Suggestions

The women of Britain are public-minded. They have heeded Lord Woolton's personal message to them, begging that they should save in the little things. They have been told that every time they waste a scrap of food they have wasted the effort of brave men who risked their lives to bring it to them. There are few households in England today where food is being wasted wantonly, and most women try to live up to the Food Minister's "Housewives' Food Code" which reads as follows:

1. Don't try and get more than your share of rationed foods. That extra ounce of meat or butter belongs to someone else.
2. Don't shop-crawl, trying to increase your hoard.
3. Don't offer more than the controlled price for anything.
4. Don't buy food you consider too dear. In this way only will you bring prices down.
5. Use to the full food which is plentiful.
6. Shop early and take a basket with you.
7. Don't waste shop assistant's time by asking impertinent questions.

Housewives can buy vitaminized wholemeal bread, and there is plenty of white bread to be had. Staple foods, though in restricted quantities, are all obtainable; so are some "luxuries." Hoarders can be blamed for many shortages and now food inspectors will be given the power to inspect larders wherever undue food hoarding is suspected.

Started Sport
 The sport of horse racing in America started in New York. Col. Richard Nicoll called a meeting on Long Island for "encouraging the bettering of the breed of horses," and the sport spread throughout the nation from there.

The hotel business of the United States is its seventh largest industry.

MURDER IN CONVOY

BY A. W. O'BRIEN

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Rollins, embittered by his experience with Joan, tells his whole story to the colonel, seeks no mercy for pre-arranged execution. The colonel tells him he is too valuable to be lost to a court-martial, and extends his sympathy to the ill-fated romance. Officers of the convoy break open sealed orders, discover strategy for eluding Nazi craft and get all of troops safely to England.

TO THE "WELCOME SNAIL"

CHAPTER XI

DELIBERATELY or not, Lieutenant Rollins was given the toughest organization chores upon arrival at Aldershot Camp. Assigned to the Divisional Headquarters Staff, he had been rushed immediately upon arrival at a Scottish port to the nearest railway terminal and sent, with a number of other officers, directly to Aldershot to handle endless detail work associated with the billeting of the Canadian soldiers due to follow on troop trains.

But Rollins was glad of the 20-hour-a-day job. It helped take his mind off other thoughts that gnawed into his brain at every leisure moment. Besides, the tragic experience on "T 9" had taken the edge off the glamor to be expected at the end of the zig-zaggy Atlantic odyssey. The zip had gone out of the whole drama, and his soul was haunted by a memory—the soft light in a pair of blue eyes as he glanced fleetingly in Joan's direction that fateful night in the O. C.'s cabin. That he had followed the stern path of duty didn't ease his pain. There are emotions that rise above patriotism, and in the softness of those blue eyes—even after his "betrayal"—Greg had read forgiveness. He could have sworn that she had given him a kindly smile, as much as to say that she understood. But he felt every moment he had spent with the girl would remain forever with him.

That night before landing had provided many thrills. In the late afternoon, the troops had plainly heard intensive gunfire in the distant southeast and, strangely enough, the convoy had immediately veered off an oddly irregular course in the direction of the action. An hour or so after sunset, the booming noises had ended, and the ocean expanse had assumed the mantle of awesome tranquility that comes with night. It was nearly 1 o'clock when a lonely twinkling light on the starboard bow made the night young. Outside, the ship remained its same gloomy black-out self, but, inside, it was pulsating with life and good fellowship. That lonely light meant the convoy had actually come within sight of land—most likely Northern Ireland—and although the ships were obviously in dangerous waters the thrill of seeing a lighthouse after so many days at sea dominated all other sensations.

NEXT morning, Greg and his fellow staff officers reached Aldershot Camp. Army transport autos rushed them from the railway terminal through typically English lanes, bordered by well-kept green hedges, quaint little villages, endless parade grounds level as a billiard table, pretty streams and dense wooded areas.

Now, three days after arriving at Aldershot, the hectic preliminary work had been completed. Headquarters Companies of the various units would now take over, and Rollins found himself reading a notification from his O. C. that would ordinarily have brought a cheer to his lips. He had been granted his 43 hours' leave effective immediately instead of having to wait for the expected 10 days.

With a grim smile, he fingered the brisk army note. A look-see at London would have been a new high for him if . . . if . . . life shook his head.

SEATED in a London-bound train, Greg read with interest a delayed newspaper report of the landing of "another contingent from Canada—this time a complete division—at an unnamed Scottish port."

Another headline caught his eye: NAZIS BLITZED IN CONVOY ATTACK. Under it a heading read: U-BOAT TRAP BACK-FIRES WITH HEAVY LOSSES.

"It was announced today by the Admiralty that a major assault on an incoming convoy was repulsed with heavy losses suffered by the Nazis. At least five U-boats were destroyed," the account stated, "and 12 enemy bombers and fighters downed in one of the fiercest engagements of short duration seen in the war to date."

"No indication was given of the size of the British escort or of the whereabouts of the attack, but it was stated that some of the planes shot down carried R. A. F. markings which is alleged to have been the reason for the sinking of a liner some weeks ago. It would appear, therefore, that the R. A. F. has devised a signal system that has checkmated the latest Hitlerian device."

"Except for one fighter which failed to return from the engagement, the only loss suffered by the British forces was some damage to a destroyer and the sinking of a trawler, the Loch Lomond. The gallant skipper, whose name had not yet been ascertained as this edition went to press, found himself near a U-boat that had apparently been driven to the surface by depth-charges."

Rollins smiled sadly to himself. He was recalling the ruddy-faced Scot who had stood on the bridge and waved merrily as he passed the troop ships back in the Canadian port while the men sang the song suggested by the painted-over name on the bow.

It was evening when Greg landed in Waterloo Station. For the first time, the lieutenant found himself in something of a quandary. Where would he go? London was cloaked in its nightly blackout shadows, and there was nothing to be seen by pedestrians. A roast beef dinner at Simpson's might be the best bet. He told his way gingerly into a cab.

"To Simpson's, driver, and there's no hurry." He settled back in the darkness, then leaned forward again, tapping the glass. "Could you drive me, instead, to a restaurant on Greek Street in the Soho? It's called the 'Welcome Snail'."

In the gloom of the cab, Rollins' face was lined with a whimsical smile. This would have been a glorious night if he had been on his way to a meeting with Joan. He mentally pictured the scene, and even imagined how she would look, what they would talk about and . . . He shook his head. This was tearing open wounds that had cut deeply into his very being.
